The Molad: Friday morning, 1:56 and 3 portions.
The moon may be sanctified until Friday night, the 13th, 8:18 p.m.

The first day of Rosh Chodesh is on Shabbos Parshas R'eh.

See the section for Shabbos Parshas Mikeitz.

On this day, we begin reciting Psalm 27, L'Dovid ori, after the Song of the Day in the Morning Service and before Oleinu in the Afternoon Service. (We continue this practice until, and including, Hosha'ana Rabbah). Our custom is to recite only one Kaddish after all the Psalms (i.e., the Song of the Day, L'Dovid ori, and also the Psalm Barevi Nafshi) are recited. Similarly, in the Afternoon Service, only one Kaddish is recited after L'Dovid ori and Oleinu.

We recite the Haftorah for Shabbos Rosh Chodesh (Y'shayahu, chapter 66), we then add the first and last verses from the Haftorah, Machar Chodesh (I Shmuel 20:18 and 42).

We recite the fifth chapter of Pirkei Avos following the Afternoon Service.

The second day of Rosh Chodesh is on Sunday.

On every day of this month, we sound the shofar at the end of the Morning Service, with the exception of Shabbos and the day preceding Rosh HaShanah. Our custom is to sound a series of t'kiab-sh'varim-t'ruah-t'kiab blasts, then a series of t'kiab-sh'varim-t'kiab blasts, and then a series of t'kiab-t'ruah-t'kiab blasts.

From the second day of Rosh Chodesh Elul until Yom Kippur, in addition to the daily recitation of Psalms according to the monthly cycle, we recite three extra Psalms each day (on the first day, Psalms 1-3, on the second, 4-6, etc.). On Yom Kippur itself, we complete the T'hilim, reciting 36 extra Psalms: 9 before Kol Nidrei, 9 before going to sleep, 9 after Musaf, and 9 after N'lab.

If a person did not start this practice on the second day of Rosh Chodesh, he should start on the day he remembers and then make up for the previous days.1

1. HaYom Yom Elul 1.
People who are precise in their observance of the mitzvos have their t’fillin and mezuzos checked during this month and review carefully their observance of the Torah and its mitzvos, correcting any flaws in their conduct.

Elul 7, Shabbos Parshas Shoftim.

We recite the sixth chapter of Pirkei Avos following the Afternoon Service.

Elul 14, Shabbos Parshas Ki Seitzei.

The Rebbe instructed that, when reading the concluding verse of the parshab (D’varim 25:19) and in the Maftir, the word זכר from the phrase עמלק זכר should be read twice: first with a tzeirei (zeicher) and then with a segol (zecher).

The Alter Rebbe instructed that the word דכא (D’varim 23:2) (in the Torah scroll) should be written with an alef at the end, not with a hei.²

For the Haftorah we read Rami Akara and Aniya Soa’ra (Y’shayahu 54:1-17; 55:1-5).

We recite the first and second chapters of Pirkei Avos following the Afternoon Service.

Elul 15, Sunday.

This day marks the anniversary of the founding of Yeshivas Tomchei Temimim, the Central Lubavitcher Yeshivah, in Lubavitch, in 5657 (1897). The actual studying of Nigleh and Chassidus began on the 18th of Elul 5657 (1897).

Elul 18, Wednesday, Chai Elul.

This day marks the birthday of “the two great luminaries,” the Baal Shem Tov and the Alter Rebbe.³

Elul 21, Shabbos Parshas Ki Savo.

In the Torah reading, it is customary for the reader to raise his voice slightly when reading the verse (D’varim 26:15): Hashkifah mim’on kadsh’cha.⁴

For the sixth aliyah, the reader ascends to the Torah without being called. He recites the blessings before and after the Torah reading.

We recite the third and fourth chapters of Pirkei Avos following the Afternoon Service.

3. Sefer HaSichos 5703, p. 188.
We begin the recitation of S'lichos. On Motzavi Shabbos itself, the S'lichos are recited directly after midnight. (Please check your local calendar). On the subsequent days of the week, they are recited shortly before dawn or in the early hours of the morning.

When rising to say S'lichos before dawn, one should recite the Morning Blessings and the blessing of the Torah. A person should not recite the blessing banosein lasechvi... unless he actually hears a rooster crow. Nor should he recite the blessing she'asah li kol tzarki unless he wears leather shoes. After daybreak, however, these blessings should be recited.

The chazan recites S'lichos while robed in a tallis. At night and before dawn, he should not, however, recite a blessing when putting it on. The S'lichos prayers begin with Ashrei, a half-Kaddish, and then follow the prescribed order. We recite the confessional prayer (Ashamnu etc.) only once. We do not prostrate ourselves when reciting the passage Vayomer Dovid el Gad. We say a full Kaddish with Tiskabel. See also the passage of the Fast of Gedaliah (Tishrei 3) where these laws are described.

When a person recites S'lichos without a minyan, he should not recite the Thirteen Attributes of Mercy, nor should he recite any of the hymns written in Aramaic, e.g., Macei Umasei. There are many who follow the custom of fasting on the first day of S'lichos.

Elul 28, Shabbos Parsbas Nitzavim.

Both, the seventh aliyah and the Maftir, begin at D’varim 30:15.

We recite T’hillim as is customary every Shabbos M’vorachim, but do not bless the new month.

(The Alter Rebbe said in the name of the Baal Shem Tov: “Tishrei is blessed by the Holy One, blessed be He, Himself. And with the power of this blessing, the Jews bless the other eleven months of the year.”)

We recite the passage Av HaRachamim.

We recite the fifth and sixth chapters of Pirkei Avos following the Afternoon Service.

On Motzai Shabbos, we do not say V'Atah Kadosh and Vibi Noam.

This day marks the birthday of the Tzemach Tzedek, Rabbi Menachem Mendel, in 5549 (1789).

On this day, even a person in the seven days of the shivah mourning may attend the synagogue to recite S'lichos. The Tachanun supplications are recited in S'lichos, but not in the Morning or Afternoon Services. The shofar is not sounded.

After the Morning Service, we perform bataras nedarim, the release of vows. This rite should be performed with 10 people serving as judges. It is necessary to understand the words one is reading. A person who does not understand the Hebrew should read the passage in his native tongue. (We do not recite the Seder Nezifah).

There are many people who fast on this day. If, however, they encounter a feast associated with a mitzvah, they may take part and eat. It is not necessary for them to have this vow released.

We cut our hair and go to the mikveh.

The Rebbe initiated the practice of assisting the needy with the extra expenses for all the festivals of the month of Tishrei.7

Before the evening, we put on our festive garments, confident that G-d will miraculously favor us in judgment and look upon us with the attribute of mercy. He alone judges all created beings.

L'shanah Tovah Nikaseiv V'neichaseim. May we all be inscribed and sealed for a good year, with abundant material and spiritual blessings, including the greatest blessing, the coming of Moshiach. Amen!
